

Christos Kyriakidis

Chris Kyriakidis was born in 1989 in Athens. He graduated from the Department of Political Science and International Relations at the University of Peloponnese with first-class honors (2011). He participated as a senior student in the official internship program of his university at the Vice-Presidency of the Hellenic Government (2011). He has been volunteering as junior researcher at the think-tank of Konstantinos Karamanlis Institute for Democracy (2011), as personal assistant for the President of the Jean Monnet European Centre of Excellence at the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens (2012) and as a contractor at the Greek Office of Konrad-Adenauer-Stiftung (2012). Furthermore, he worked as a consultant for the Deputy Chief of Staff for European Union and International Affairs at the Prime Minister's Office (2012-2015). Finally he worked voluntarily as a research fellow at the Department of International Cooperation at the Konstantinos Karamanlis Institute for Democracy (2016-2017) and then as Head of the General Director's Office which was renamed a few months later as the Director of the Scientific Council, as well as the Department of International Cooperation (2017-2018). He speaks English and a little French.